

“Eoharpes” sp. (TH253) → Lioharpes sp. (TH244a)

Eoharpes → Harpida → Harpina → Harpoidea → Harpetidae

Provenance : Morocco; Tafilalet, Rissani area

Formation : ? Fm

Age : Devonian

Details : Complete specimen. Starting up this website has had me looking deeper into the validity of certain genus names, and one thing I found out (from the info I've been able to gather) is that Eoharpes most probably does not exist in the Devonian (it's rather exclusive to the Ordovician). More likely, the specimen at hand belongs to Lioharpes...which IS (officially) reported from Atchaana (and exclusive to the Devonian). In fact, I already have a specimen (TH244), bought as “Neoharpes” (which doesn't exist!) a month and a half earlier from the same vendor...whom would sell me a “Lioharpes” (obviously an Eoharpes) of the Ordovician only a couple of months later! Rather than rant about vending strategies... Another numbering adjustment to make, darned!
